

MANY MATTERS AT SPECIAL TERM

Law Suits Covering Wide Range of Subjects Heard by Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday.

An action to recover for the value of fertilizers sold but which were claimed to have been unsatisfactory has been brought by Swift & Company, Inc., against Louis D. LeFever, and on Saturday a motion was made before Judge Hasbrouck at the regular monthly special term of the supreme court to compel the defendant to furnish a bill of particulars. The fertilizers were sold under contract under the terms of which Mr. LeFever was to receive a commission, but he refused to turn over the money on the ground that the fertilizers were not as represented, that purchasers of the same were dissatisfied with the quality and claimed damages against Mr. LeFever by reason of their unsatisfactory character. Judge Clearwater appeared for the plaintiff and the motion. Judge Jenkins, who appeared for Mr. LeFever, said that a great deal of information had been furnished in the answer to the suit. Judge Clearwater said that the additional information sought by the plaintiff included the names of the purchasers of the fertilizers, the dates of the sales and the character of the loss which such purchasers claimed to have sustained. Judge Jenkins said a list of customers and the dates of sale could be furnished but it was impossible to furnish all the information requested. Judge Hasbrouck directed that Mr. LeFever furnish as much information as possible and granted the motion without costs.

WANT TO LOCATE AUTOMOBILE.

In the case of Frank M. Dodd against John B. Hyatt and another, a motion was made by the defendant to open a default taken in Sullivan county. Andrew J. Cook appeared for Edwin T. James of New York city and the motion; Judge Joseph Rosch of Liberty appeared for the plaintiff and opposed. Mr. James, who is one of the defendants, claims he never received the complaint, which was served by mail. Other papers in the case had been mailed by Judge Rosch to 99 Nassau street, New York city, instead of 299 Broadway, which Mr. James claims is his office address. Judge Rosch contended that he had served the complaint within the time allowed by law, and had mailed to the address shown on the letterheads of Mr. James. The action was brought to recover for an automobile sold to Hyatt by Dodd, who conducted a boarding house at White Lake, Sullivan county. Hyatt gave a chattel mortgage which he later renewed when he removed to Bronx county. Subsequently Hyatt discontinued payments and James notified Dodd that he had taken over the automobile and would continue payments at the rate of $50 a month until the entire $500 then due was paid. After two payments, he too stopped. Judge Rosch said his client had great difficulty in locating Hyatt, but even greater difficulty in locating the automobile in which he was more interested. Judge Hasbrouck directed that the default be opened provided the defendants furnish a bond for the amount due; that the judgment would be paid in case Hyatt should get a recovery; otherwise the motion to be denied.

Suit About Milk.

In the action brought by Emanuel D. Offen, just the Levy Dairy Corporation, a motion was made by Virginia Victor Sipris of New York city, attorney for the defendant, to open a default, which was opposed by Ellsworth Baker, attorney for the plaintiff. The action was brought to recover damages for alleged breach of contract on the part of the defendant to take the whole of the milk produced by the plaintiff who resides in Delaware county. Various motions have been made, one of which was returnable at the special term of the supreme court in this city on September 7. Notice of this motion was served at Mr. Zippin's office in New York on September 4, while Mr. Zippin was on his vacation. His father, who is not a lawyer, tried to get in communication with Mr. Baker and others but did not succeed. Later in the day a telegram was received signed with Mr. Baker's name, stating the motion was returnable at Albany instead of Kingston. Mr. Baker appeared at Kingston on the next day of the motion and secured his order. He explained that the telegram to Mr. Zippin had been sent by his uncle, who had made a mistake. Judge Hasbrouck opened the default without prejudice to Mr. Baker moving to open a default on his part.

Other Orders.

Orders were also granted in the following matters: John C. Burroughs against Robert F. Leiber and others. Action to foreclose mortgage on property in Sullivan county. Order appointing John J. Gillette referee to compute amount due, and on his report judgment of foreclosure and sale under direction of Just L. Foster granted. Jacob H. Baker against Joseph A. Ames and others. Action to foreclose mortgage on property in Ulster county. Judgment of foreclosure and sale under direction of Edgar E. Ough-

ASKS $25,000 IN ALIENATION SUIT

Walden People Involved in Suit to be Tried in Orange County This Week—Claims Garrison Too Friendly With Bookkeeper.

From statements made before Judge Hasbrouck at the regular monthly special term of the supreme court at the court house on Saturday, the trial of the action brought by Charles F. Budd against Asahel B. Garrison in the supreme court in Orange county this week should prove interesting. The action was brought for alienation of affections of the plaintiff's wife, who before her marriage to Budd was Jennie E. Brill, and the motion before Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday was for leave to serve an amended complaint which would allege criminal conversation as an additional cause of action. The plaintiff asks $25,000 damages. Mr. Garrison is a large coal merchant at Walden, Orange county. Mr. Budd, who also resides at Walden, claims that Mr. Garrison employed his wife as bookkeeper in his office and that during such time the acts complained of occurred. The Budds were married in 1916. Various motions in the case have been made in other counties, in one of which, according to statements made to Judge Hasbrouck, it had been said that the plaintiff and his wife were living together. Judge Hasbrouck granted the motion on payment of $40 costs. John H. DeVany of Ellenville appeared for the plaintiff and the motion; Earl H. Houghtaling of Walden appeared for the defendant and opposed.

Benjamin Bahl, arrested last week for parking his car in front of the Lyric Theater on the Strand, was discharged with a warning to study the traffic laws. He claimed he was unable to read or write, and Judge Schirck advised him to get a copy of the traffic law and have someone who could read do so for him and explain the law. The judge said that ignorance of the law was no excuse.

LOCAL DEALERS VIOLATING LAWS

Says City Sealer of Weights and Measures William Moyle, Calling Attention To Neglect To Properly Mark Packages With Net Weights Of Contents.

City Sealer of Weights and Measures William Moyle stated today that a good many farmers are bringing their produce to market and violating the law by not selling the required amount of pounds to the bushel. Friday of last week the city sealer was calling on a local dealer and checked up a shipment of potatoes and found they ran about four pounds short to the bushel. This shortage was taken up with the shipper at once asking him to make an explanation as to the short weight.

The city sealer expects to strictly enforce the law as regards farmers and local dealers who are in the habit of selling and delivering short weight in potatoes, onions, carrots, sweet potatoes, etc. A bushel of potatoes must weigh 60 pounds.

The city sealer said that the net quantity of the contents of each container must be plainly marked so that the customer knows exactly how many pounds he or she is buying at the time the purchase is made. There are some baskets that will hold fourteen pounds of grapes and some that will hold twelve pounds. It would not be fair for the customer to have to pay as much for the twelve pound package as the one containing two pounds more. That is one of the reasons the state law makes it mandatory on the part of the seller to mark the net weight plainly so that the buyer knows exactly how much he is buying.

Mr. Moyle said that a good many dealers are selling without the marks on the containers which is a violation of the law punishable by a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $100 for the first and second violation, and a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $200 for subsequent violations.

4 YEGGS STAGE REVOLVER FIGHT

Three Captured in Running Battle With Poughkeepsie Police Sunday—$2,000 Thrown Away.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Poughkeepsie, Oct. 4.—Yeggmens discovered early Sunday in the act of ripping open the safe in the Stratford Theater, in Cannon street, engaged in a running pistol fight with Charles Bennett, a watchman, and William A. McCabe, confidential agent for Superintendent of Prisons Rattigan, arousing the lower part of the city.

Police Chief McCabe threw a cordon around the business section and three of the four alleged robbers were captured. The fourth escaped in an automobile leaving his hat, bearing a New York city maker's name.

The three men captured said they were Samuel Cohen, 25 years old, of Philadelphia; Morris Cokin, 25 years old, and Allen Schepps, 26 years old, both of New York city.

In the office of the theater the police found burglars' tools weighing more than 150 pounds, including three sectional jimmies, a number of braces and bits and several cutting tools.

When the robbers fled they carried with them a handbag containing $2,000 in cash which had been taken from the wrecked safe. This bag was found in a yard nearby. The police say it was thrown over the fence during the fight.

Watchman Bennett was making his rounds a little after 1 o'clock when he saw a light flickering on the ceiling of the office. Peering inside, he saw three men working on a safe which had been ripped open.

Calling McCabe, a brother of Chief McCabe, who was passing, the two entered the front door.

The sound of the door opening alarmed the yeggmens, who fled through a rear door, jumping two fences Bennett and McCabe followed, opening fire on the dodging figures. Their fire was returned and the fusillade aroused the neighborhood.

A telephone message was sent to Chief McCabe, and he called out the reserves, surrounding the district. Meanwhile citizens, armed with many kinds of weapons, joined in the search, which centered about a building under construction.

David Lee, 17 years old, who lives in Upper Cannon street, and Police- man Erase went into the cellar of the partly built house, and in a far corner came upon the fugitives. The shouts outside and general clamor of other searchers convinced the yeggmens that resistance was useless, and they came out without a fight.

The search for the loot followed, and the treasure bag was found in the back yard of a building a few hundred feet away.

The office of the Stratford Theater was wrecked. Desks were wantonly smashed open and their contents scattered about the floor. The safe had been ripped open with a sectional jimmy known as a "can opener," and books and papers ripped across scattered about the room. The money was swept into the burglars' bag. In their hurry they overlooked Liberty bonds valued at thousands of dollars.

TWO AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS SUNDAY

Six Persons Hurt in Crash at Milton Where Maxwell Drove Ford 20 Feet Back on Roadway.

Six persons were injured in an automobile accident which occurred at 9 o'clock Sunday morning at the foot of the hill on the state road near Milton, when a Maxwell car driven by James L. Carlin of Gardiner ran into a Ford car driven by Peter McManus, of Milton, driving the Ford twenty-five feet back from the scene of the collision and completely demolishing it.

In the Ford at the time of the accident were Mr. McManus, his mother, Mrs. Sarah McManus, and his two sisters, the Misses Eleanor and Margaret McManus, all of whom were on their way to church. They were proceeding along the state road in a southerly direction. When they reached the foot of the hill Mr. McManus saw the Maxwell car coming down the hill at terrific speed and well over to the left of the road. There is a slight curve at that point.

Realizing that if he continued on the road he probably would be struck by the approaching Maxwell, Mr. McManus pulled his car to the grass alongside the road and as close as possible to the fence which borders the road at that place. He had almost brought his car to a standstill when the Maxwell struck him. The force of the collision was so great that the Ford was driven back on the roadway and along the fence for a distance of twenty-five feet. The Maxwell then passed the Ford and continued for another twenty-five feet, when it ran its nose in the bank.

Peter McManus was badly cut and bruised. His sister, Margaret, received severe injuries to her arm and shoulder and was otherwise bruised and cut. Miss Eleanor McManus was later found to be suffering from shock and the doctors fear she suffered internal injuries; her condition is serious. Mrs. Sarah McManus, their mother, was slightly injured. Mr. Carlin, the driver of the Maxwell car, was cut and bruised, and Mr. Bennett, who was with him, was also slightly injured.

The Ford car, driven by Mr. McManus, was entirely wrecked. The front fender was doubled up like a jack knife, the springs were broken, the wind shield smashed, the axles bent and the radiator was twisted off the frame. Miss Margaret McManus, who sat in the rear seat, was thrown so violently against the back of the front seat, that the back was bent. The Maxwell car was damaged but not badly.

The Misses McManus and their brother are nieces and a nephew of Thomas McManus of Milton. Miss Margaret McManus was employed as stenographer in the office of Edwin Perkins, a Poughkeepsie lawyer, who will look after the interests of the McManus family in regard to legal matters. No criminal complaint has as yet been made, but it is possible that such complaint may be made later.

Accident On Saugerties Road. An accident occurred near the residence of John S. Carpenter on the Saugerties road about nine o'clock Sunday evening in which a five-passenger Ford car was demolished. The car was going in the direction of Saugerties when it swerved from the road and struck an upright post which forms the end of the fence in front of Mr. Carpenter's property. The front of the car was entirely demolished and the post was broken off at the ground.

The top rail of the fence was at about the height of the top of the radiator from the ground, and was lifted up when the front of the car passed under it. The end of the rail smashed the wind shield, just grazed the head of the driver and passed between the heads of two young women who occupied the rear seat and protruded out of the back curtain. In order to remove the car, it was necessary to draw it away from the rail, which resembled a huge splinter that had penetrated the car.

The driver of the car declined to give his name or the name of his companions. He was a young man and explained the collision with the fence by saying the lights on his car had suddenly gone out and he could not see the road. He said his car was not traveling very fast. The car bore the New York 1920 license plate No. 296-650.

MANY DIVORCE AND SEPARATION SUITS

Various Cases of Marital Troubles Heard by Judge Hasbrouck at Special Term Saturday.

Whether a verdict secured by a husband for alienation of his wife's affections should act as a bar to an application made by his wife for alimony and counsel fee in an action brought against her for divorce was the novel question raised before Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court, in the case of Earl Yanson against Myrtle Yanson. The parties reside in Delaware county and separated July 7, 1919, when Yanson left Mrs. Yanson. At the last term of the supreme court in Delaware county, Yanson recovered judgment against a man named Simonson for $2,000 for alienating Mrs. Yanson's affections. It is expected the case will be appealed. Misconduct is denied by Mrs. Yanson. There are two children who remained with their mother until last October, since then they have been living with their father.

Judge Hasbrouck granted $5 a week alimony from the commencement of the divorce action, last August, and $25 counsel fee. O'Connor & O'Connor appeared for the defendant and the motion; Ives & Craft appeared for the plaintiff and opposed.

More Testimony in Shannon Case.

Application to re-open the separation suit brought by Katharine Shannon against James Shannon and for leave to offer newly discovered evidence was argued at length by Frank W. Brooks, who appeared for the plaintiff, and the motion, and by Charles Clark of New York city, who appeared for the defendant and opposed.

The case has had several hearings before Judge Hasbrouck and was awaiting decision John D. Lyons of Monticello was originally attorney for Mrs. Shannon. Later Fowler & Loughran were substituted as her attorneys and recently Mr. Brooks was substituted in their place.

Shannon is a lieutenant in the United States Navy and receives a salary of $4,000 a year. The Shannons were married in Brooklyn on September 23, 1905 and separated October 11, 1919. Mrs. Shannon alleges that because of her husband's cruel and inhuman treatment, her nerves became shattered and her health has become impaired. She claims that he is arrogant and unreasonable and frequently uses profane language to her.

Mrs. Shannon had possession of the children but when she returned temporarily to California, they were placed in charge of her sister to whom Lieutenant Shannon is said to have taken a violent dislike.

Jail Ordered For Husband.

In the action for separation brought by Nellie M. Betz against Frederick Betz of Hudson, a motion was made by Coffin & Coffin of Hudson, attorneys for the wife, to punish Betz for contempt of court in failing to pay alimony and counsel fee.

Betz appeared personally and announced that he did not intend to pay out any more money. Judge Hasbrouck asked him whether he desired to have counsel assigned to him by the court but he said he did not. Mr. Coffin said that Betz already had had two attorneys. In answer to questions by Judge Hasbrouck, Betz said that if his wife did not think he was worth living with, she was not a woman worth chasing after.

Other questions were not answered and Judge Hasbrouck told him:

"Your obstinacy will get you in jail yet."

"Then I'll go to jail," said Betz, putting on his hat and walking out of the court room.

The motion declaring him in contempt and directing his arrest was granted.

Other Marital Cases.

An additional witness was examined in the Delaware county action for divorce brought by Mary E. Skinner against Elmer Skinner, which had been held open since the September special term. At that time testimony was given by the officer who served the summons and complaint on Skinner who stated that Skinner had said all the allegations except one were correct, but Judge Hasbrouck held at that time that admissions unsupported by other evidence were insufficient. Decision was reserved. Eugene M. Bouton appeared for the plaintiff; there was no appearance on the part of the defendant.

Emma Mataga against Stanko Mataga. This case was tried some time ago. An interlocutory decree of divorce was granted, directing the payment of $15 per week alimony and $25 counsel fee and taxable costs. Van Etten & Cook appeared for the plaintiff; there was no appearance on the part of the defendant.

Henry Fuller against Amanda Fuller. Action for divorce. Matter held open. Brainerd & Canfield for the plaintiff; Judge James Jenkins for the defendant.

Improvement in Photography.

The business of making photographic enlargements has been greatly simplified by the construction of a vertical enlarging camera which is suspended overhead and projects its light down upon a horizontal sheet which is placed on a table under it. The arrangement and manipulation of the paper to reach more conveniently close to this position.

AT THE THEATRES.

California Bathing Girls. At Opera House—George Walsh At Keene's.

The athletic star George Walsh in "Sink or Swim" is the attraction at Keene's tonight. This story is about a two-fisted westerner who started abroad on a business trip and returned on his honeymoon trip. It's a real comedy. A Mark Bennett comedy, "The Quack Doctor," is also programmed for tonight. Tomorrow Will Rogers in "The Strange Boarder," a smile a minute, the story of an optimist who never lost faith in his fellow men; who kept his word, though it brought him into the shadow of the gallows and he "came through" in the end.

The California Bathing Beauties are in Kingston to delight the lovers of good singing and dancing and will appear at every performance at the Kingston Opera House tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. They will appear during a showing of the picture "Up in Larry's Arms," a thrilling and amusing story of high jinks in a golf seminar with the most promising ladies and the melodramatic thrills brought out by the New York and Harry Gold boys, and a continuing battle. There are three performances at the Opera House daily at 2:30, 7 and 9:30. Harry Carey in "Blue Streak McCoy" at the Auditorium tonight is a thrilling western picture. "The Quack Doctor" finds himself a border town of the frontier, governing the interests of the town. The last episode of "The Quack Doctor" will be shown tonight also.

Tomorrow Marguerite Marsh in "Wits vs. Wits."

"Lightning" holder of the world's record for length of run on Broadway and the most successful play in the history of the American stage, will be presented at the Kingston Opera House Thursday night with Milton Nobles in the role of Lightning! Bill Jones, Bessie Bacon will be seen as Margaret Davis, the vaudeville actress. Producer John Golden is sending to this city the special company formed to fill important bookings in Chicago and a few of the principal eastern cities when it developed that New York, after two years of capacity business, refused to part with the Winchell Smith crowd.

Strangers in Language.

All men are strangers. There are no two men on earth who speak the same language. Each places his own individual meaning in his words with the self-same words men talk of quite different things. And I cannot be certain how my words will be interpreted by him to whom they are addressed. That is the reason all aged people talk to themselves; it is the habit of a lifetime experience—Edwin Johnson, Leonard's Translation of Aron Gollberg's "The Last Father."

You Answer. It had been raining all day, not really from the clouds. "Storms" were the gods of the gods, and out of a crowd what does he do with it?

If you are using your eyes by artificial light be sure the light does not shine directly into the eyes, and try to have it come from behind and to the left side so as to avoid the harmful glare.

There will be a "woman vote" in this country," Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is quoted as saying. "Just as we have had an Irish vote, a German vote, an Italian vote and other votes, whenever anything affecting a particular class has come up for settlement."

German-American, Irish-American and what not, and now we are promised the group action of the woman-American vote. But at least we are not likely to have the man-American vote as a distinctive and self-seeking political body, for in America mere man is pretty sure to think twice before he organizes with a view to try conclusions with the domestic powers that be.

THE LEVITY OF WILLIAM II.

The great war played havoc with practically all rulers by Divine right, completely knocking the support from under their pretensions. After-war revelations, continuing the process, have demolished whatever vestiges of the shaky foundations that still lingered. The former Kaiser, for example, must feel that there is indeed no one left to do him honor in these terrible times when these majesties, or as he would say, majestiesbeleidigung, is a continuous performance without let-up. It is not merely the critical or contemptuous observations of foreigners that he has to complain of. One prominent German after another in whom he once condescended to confide has handled him without gloves in newspaper interviews or published memoirs. The latest of many blows from such German sources comes in the form of the published "Experiences" of Herr Erzberger, who, though he says he can not yet tell the whole story of his work in the Government and the Reichstag, writes that he had frequent occasion to observe the Kaiser and was struck by his "extraordinary levity."

He gives examples of the former Kaiser's ignorance as well as of his flippancy, telling, for one thing, of his flighty talk to the Socialist members in July, 1917, about coming to terms with France—such terms as would be acceptable in Germany and impossible in France—and then leading the entire Continent in a war upon England! Testimony from many sources shows that, in his reckless irresponsibility, William II led his diplomats and ministers generally a trying life. "This miserable Emperor of ours," Baron Holstein confessed privately to Sir Valentine Chirol as far back as 1908, "will either end in a madhouse or destroy our German empire." William II may not have believed in the "Divine right" of which he boasted, but he must have thought that he had the world in a sling and could venture to play with it just as irresponsibly as a child may play with a ball or top.

INDIFFERENT NEW VOTERS.

Reports from many northern and western states have indicated much indifference on the part of the new voters as shown in their slowness to qualify for the exercise of the new privilege. It has been stated that in some cases the registration figures show a failure of almost 50 per cent to qualify, a failure attributed to either indifference or hostility to the privilege, and suggesting the proverbial horse that may be driven to water but can not be made to drink. The reports of the most widespread indifference, however, naturally come from the south, the region of the most rock-ribbed conservatism, where the woman question is so concerned. The southern dispatches indicate that, except in Richmond, Va., very little interest has so far been shown in registration by southern women. We read that in New Orleans about 1,000 white women and only about a dozen colored women have registered in Jacksonville, Florida, while and black women have registered in about equal numbers, but there and in the state generally very little interest is shown. In Arkansas, however, where there is no registration law, both white and negro women are reported to have paid the necessary poll tax in large numbers. In Georgia, registering can be done in the voting and women there will be able to vote in November unless an extra session of the legislature is held, but the women are not clamoring for a special enabling act. In Mississippi comparatively few women have registered and paid the $2 poll tax. The indications are that the ballot is unwelcome to the masses of southern white women and that if they are brought to the polls later on they will act only in order to counterbalance the votes of black women.

RURAL PHYSICAL TEACHERS MEET

Town Health Officers to Examine Every Scholar This Year—Attendance Must Be Enforced or Public Money May Be Withheld.

The first physical training conference of the school year 1920-1921 was held at Phoenixia on Thursday, Sept. 30.

Miss Mae Scheel, one of "the angels of health and happiness" as the state corps of physical instructors was called by Commissioner Finley, had charge of this meeting.

The first part of the morning session was given to explanations of the health club and the first five weeks' work in physical education. This period was then followed by distribution of blanks and other material from the education department to be used in connection with the medical inspection and health supervision of the schools. This year every pupil in each school must be examined by the health officer of the town.

Superintendent Andrews then gave a talk to the teachers on the attendance law. Several towns had had reports last year, and special attention must be given to attendance this year if the districts do not wish to lose their public money. It is particularly important that the teachers keep their registers according to the directions in the registers.

The state police will help to enforce the attendance law this year, but they should not be called upon when the case devolves upon other officials.

In the afternoon the session was given up to explanations and discussions of the games and exercises for the ensuing five weeks.

The next meetings will be at Ashokan on Thursday, Nov. 11, 1920; and at Phoenixia on Friday, Nov. 12, 1920.

EX-SERVICE MEN.

Scholarship Still Available for U. S. Men Outside City.

There is still a small fund available for scholarships for ex-service men, to be given by the U. S. C. A. of America, which has not been used. The allotment for Kingston and Ulster county was put in one fund, and awards were made by an Ulster county service committee for both Kingston men and Ulster county men. Inasmuch as the amount allotted to Kingston was wholly used by Kingston men, preference will be given applications from Ulster county men outside of Kingston. For those who did not read the previous items regarding these awards it will be stated that any former service man may secure application blank and apply for any correspondence course through any school in recognized good standing. These applications will be considered by the Ulster county educational service committee. Further information or application blanks can be secured from F. Gardner Clough, U. S. C. A., Kingston, N. Y., acting secretary of this committee.

SEPARATION HELD IN ABEYANCE

Judge Hasbrouck Gives May and Arthur C. La Forge Month to Work Out Marital Problems Complicated by Birth Control and "Old Crow." Which Later His Honor Allows is No Good.

Birth control as an incentive to separation was propounded to Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court at the court house when the case of May La Forge, an infant, by William Thorne guardian, against Arthur C. La Forge came up on a motion by the plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee. DeWitt W. Ostrander appeared for the plaintiff and the motion; Judge Jenkins appeared for the defendant and opposed to the motion, but with the new theory of the reason why separation cases sometimes come to court.

The parties live at Modena. Both were in court during the hearing took part in the discussion which was had between court and the attorneys, all of whom have advised the parties to try to reconcile their differences and live together. At the outset of the hearing, Judge Jenkins said there was no reason for the separation as both parties had been advised by their respective attorneys to get together. The question of birth control was keeping them apart, said Judge Jenkins, the husband, who is a car repairer on the railroad, being opposed in his theory of life by his wife and her mother, who believed in a limited family.

One child, who lives with the mother, was in court and during the proceedings was cared for, with the aid of a nursing bottle, by one of the girl's relatives.

Charges of cruelty are made by the wife, who claims that her husband choked and beat her. Her attorney presented affidavits to that effect and stated that La Forge had been addicted to the habit of getting drunk, having come home at various times with bottles which bore the label, "Old Crow."

"That, of course, is impossible now," said Judge Jenkins. "I presume that 'Old Crow' means some kind of liquor," remarked Mr. Ostrander.

"It does," said Judge Hasbrouck, "and it is not any good."

Both Mr. and Mrs. La Forge told their stories to Judge Hasbrouck. La Forge said he tried to treat his wife kindly, wanted to provide her with a home and for three months after she left him had maintained a home, but the property then had been sold and he was compelled to dispose of the furniture. The third day after she left he went to her mother's house and offered her money, but she refused to accept it.

Mrs. La Forge said her husband had choked her, had called her names and once driven her from the house. He had said he would provide for the child but not for her.

After listening to the husband and wife and their attorneys, Judge Hasbrouck reminded La Forge that it was his duty to support his wife, that if she had refused the money once he might have sent it to her later because he knew she was a good mother and that if he was nice to her she might care for him again. In conclusion, he reminded them both that they appeared to be somewhat ready with their tongues, but if possible, on account of their youth and their child, they ought to work out the problem for themselves. He therefore held the case in abeyance for one month, at which time he desired the attorneys to come into court without their clients and report results.

AMERICAN WOMEN DOING FULL SHARE FOR THE COUNTRY

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Wife of Republican Nominee, Praised
Her Sex.

DISCUSSES HIGH LIVING COSTS

Declares in an Interview That Present High Prices Can Be Reduced by Votes.

By Estelline Bennett.

Mrs. Coolidge sat in a day coach on a slow local train between Boston and Northampton and talked about her husband, her children, the high cost of living and the domestic problem. The conductor and the brakeman stopped as they went through the car to talk to her. She had made friends with them in her frequent journeys back and forth to keep in touch with her children in school in Northampton and her husband at his duties in the state capital. She knitted diligently as she talked. During these trips she knits all the winter stockings and sweaters for her two boys—John, aged fourteen, and Calvin, twelve.

"Too many people are afraid of work," she thinks is the fundamental reason for the high cost of living and the much discussed domestic problem. "I think the only thing the women of the country can do now," she said, with the quiet conviction of one who has thought it all out, "is to vote for the men whom they think will make the right laws and see that they are enforced. They have done all they can in the home. I think the reason there is so much sugar on hand now is because people are doing without it in their homes."

Women Have Done Their Share.
"American women have done, and are doing, their full share. They have sacrificed and saved and substituted and made over. But that isn't enough. They'll have to vote the high cost of living down."

"Here in New England, where it is a little hard for us to give up pie," she laughed at the tradition that has become a joke, "we have learned to use all kinds of cheaper substitutes for butter and lard, and in my own household we have experimented with different fruit combinations to find something we like and that will take the least sugar. Apples must be tart to make good pies, but we have found that blueberries take less sugar and the combination of apples and blueberries, half and half, is delicious, requires less sweetening than apples and has more character than the blueberries alone."

Knows No Domestic Problems.

The domestic problem, which is clothing homes all over the country and increasing the hotel population, is something of which Mrs. Coolidge thinks she has no personal, practical knowledge. She never keeps but one maid, and she never has been without one. In the fifteen years of her married life she has had only two. The first one she employed with the furnished house into which she and Mr. Coolidge moved when they were married and took with her when she moved. The second came when the first left to go and live with her sister.

There must be a reason for their staying, it was suggested to Mrs. Coolidge, and she thought possibly there were several. She thought the type of maid had something to do with it. Her's both have been American women old enough to have a sense of responsibility to their work and intelligent enough to respond to reasonable courteous treatment.

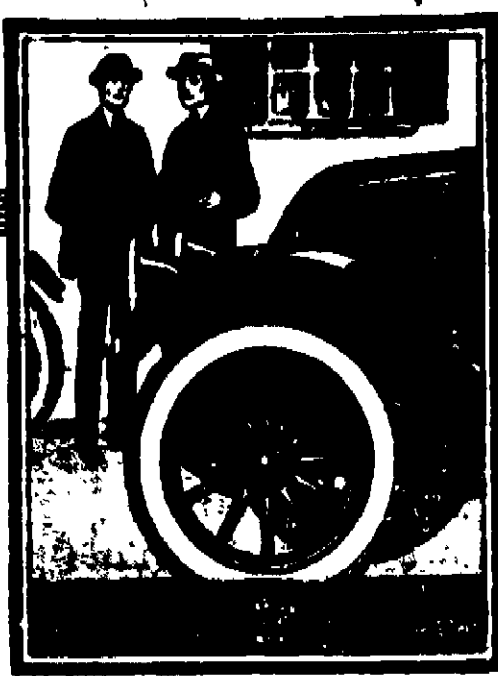

"A good many women who keep only one maid have trouble in their households because both mistress and maid, but chiefly the mistress, are afraid of work. A woman expects one maid to do the cooking and scrubbing and everything else and still be dressed up in black dress with white cap and apron, ready to answer the doorbell any minute. It isn't humanly possible. I always answer my doorbell myself. I do it for two reasons. In the first place, there is no one else, and, in the second, I like to greet my friends at the door myself."

Have Home Orchestra.

Mrs. Coolidge is of medium height, with brown hair, hazel eyes that hold a good deal of merriment and a very quick sense of humor. At home she and her children have a little orchestra. Mrs. Coolidge plays the piano, John the violin, and Calvin, after considerable discussion, in which he favored a base drum, compromised on a bally-mandolin. They play hymns and some songs usually—the hymns they learn in the Congregational church and Sunday School of Northampton. They would doubtless and volubly music because the subject of the orchestra is entirely recreational and not educational. That is a part of Mrs. Coolidge's educational policy—that children should work when they work and play when they play and keep the two distinct. That was why she sent her boys to the public schools of Northampton where they were five years old. Every morning when she is in Northampton, Mrs. Coolidge takes her three boys and goes to market. If the weather isn't too hot, she goes with her to the car. Otherwise she buys the goods and has them delivered. She says she has no domestic policy. She says she says, "what the family need and one child."

Do you get 12 miles to the gallon of gasoline?

Do you get 12,500 miles to the set of tires?

Are you able to cover all roads easily and safely?

Does your car depreciate so slowly that it has a high resale value?

How These Things Determine Whether Your Motor Car Qualifies As An Investment

GASOLINE MILEAGE, tire mileage, road-ability, depreciation—these four factors measure motor car service.

For today, more than ever before, the buying of an automobile is a matter of wise investment.

These four factors are important—gasoline mileage, because gasoline wastage must be ended; tire mileage, because with most cars that is the largest single item of upkeep; road-ability, because upon it depends your comfort and peace of mind; depreciation, because that is a sure index to reliability and car life.

Franklin results, in these respects, are a matter of record.

For eighteen years the Franklin has won practically every prominent economy run held. Its tires last two years, on the average.

It has established unequalled road records both in time between definite points and in distance within a definite time. And its slow depreciation is attested by the scarcity and high values of used Franklins everywhere.

SPEED IN NEWS SENDING

Recent Invention, Called the Teletype,
Delivers 50 Printed Words
a Minute.

The fastest machine ever invented for transmitting news events is called the teletype.

While news by ordinary telegraph in the Morse code came in at the rate of thirty-five words a minute, the teletype printed the messages at the rate of fifty words a minute.

The teletype is a simple, compact instrument which prints the messages on a strip of paper one-half inch wide, similar to the ordinary ticker "tape."

Its operators report it will operate for long periods without adjustment or attention beyond supplying it with paper and ink. It is said to be so simple it can be operated by any one with an elementary knowledge of electricity and mechanics.

Any considerable number of receiving stations may receive news by its system, thus cutting transmitting station. Thus any other be connected all on one wire or a number of wires radiating from a central station may be used.

The same principle is used in the teletype as in the simple Morse telegraph, only by omitting a series of clicks the movement of the keys causes the machine at the other end of the wire to print proper letters, instead of sending out dots and dashes.

In transmitting, the operator merely presses a typewriter key and the receiving machine prints the required letter.

A small motor, such as is used to supply power for many modern office appliances, operates the teletype. The rate of "typing" on which the news is printed is so fast enough to receive from 15,000 to 16,000 words before replacement.

Factory.

It is impossible to tell the whole truth to an average business man and even to a number of friends of the teletype. There is little knowledge of the teletype. If you had seen some of the teletype machines, you would have been proceeding to a considerable higher estimate of each other than they could set down in a perfectly honest claim.

It is not necessary that they should get the teletype. The teletype is a machine that is going on all the time and the work of the teletype.

What is said in a report of work is not done in a hurry. Can a man be sure of it? It is a machine that is going on all the time and the work of the teletype.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

HARRIET BECHER STOWE

Condensation by John Kendrick Bangs

IT WAS in the days when African slavery flourished under the free skies of America. Evil times had befallen the house of Shelby, and pressing debt required the sacrifice of a portion of the holdings of the Kentucky planter in human chattels. Uncle Tom instead of the freedom that had been promised him as the reward of a lifetime of devoted service found himself torn from wife, home and children, transferred to the hands of an unscrupulous trader, and consigned to the terror-ridden slave-markets of the lower Mississippi. So trusted had the black man been that numerous avenues of escape lay open to him. Of one of these, in the dead of winter, over the ice-bound waters of the Ohio river by the "underground" to Sandusky, and thence to freedom in Canada, the mulatto-girl Eliza, and her son who had been sold at the same time, had availed themselves. But Tom's fidelity to his master was too strong, and fearing to involve him in further difficulties he bravely faced the miseries of the future.

"I am in the Lord's hands," said he to those who tried to persuade him to escape, "and there'll be the same God there that there is here."

"Well, it's a nasty mess shame, Tom," sobbed his master's son George, as he bade the old slave farewell. "But remember—some day I'll come down and buy you back."

The voyage down the Mississippi with the slave-gang to which Tom was attached was filled with scenes and episodes of woe and tragedy, but Tom found relief from sorrow in the companionship of a fellow-passenger, a fairy-like little girl, full of the smiling spirit of play, who fascinated by Tom's unusual dexterity in the making of strange toys dear to the hearts of children, clung to him as to an old and beloved friend.

"Where are you going, Tom?" she asked one day.

"I dunno, Missy," said Tom. "Reckon I'm gwine to be sold to somebody—but I dunno who."

"Well, my father can buy you," said she, "and I'll ask him to this very day."

"Thank you, my little lady," smiled Tom, gratefully.

And his "little lady" she soon became, for the brave black woman little Eliza's life back from the swirling waters of the Mississippi into which she had fallen, and in sheer gratitude for her deliverance the child's father, Augustine St. Clare, bought him from the trader.

The scene now changes to New Orleans, where in a beautiful home, in daily comradeship with his little mistress, Tom for a time was happy. St. Clare, his new master, was kindly and sympathetic, and while of an easy-going disposition a dawning consciousness of the iniquity of slavery had come into his soul, a consciousness confirmed and accentuated by his daily contemplation of the nobility of heart of the faithful Tom. Two years of this unlooked for happiness passed away, and once more Tom was face to face with misfortune. His fever-like little companion, growing daily more and more fragile, herself in spite of her years overgrowing and depressed by the wickedness of the system of slavery which not only destroyed the souls of the oppressed, but debased the character of the oppressors, finally died. Heart-broken over his loss St. Clare found comfort only in the companionship of the equally heart-broken Tom, and one day in a sudden surge of gratitude, he promised the old man his freedom, but the light of joy that shone in Tom's face when he heard the promise disappeared.

"You haven't had such a bad time here that you should be so glad to leave me," he said sadly.

"That's leavin' ye, Marce St. Clare," said Tom, "as bein' free that I'm enjoyin' in."

But it was not to be. The easy-going nature of St. Clare caused him to delay Tom's emancipation papers, and one night trying to separate two drunken brothers intent upon killing each other St. Clare was himself stabbed to death; and in the settlement of his estate Tom once more found himself at the auction-block.

Enter now one Simon Legree, a master of far different type from Shelby and St. Clare. A brute, and a drunkard, a beast whose glance was an insult, to whom a blow was an insult, and who treated his infernal brutality, and with brutal satisfaction, poured to all who would look, his vicious culture with the blows he belatedly upon the helpless. To be victim of length of years felt by him who now turned the tragic down of the cap of slavery. The man who had been his own dear boy, and the high-spirited character he had loved, the owner of the estate of his own owner, who was loved by every white child, was now to be sold to the hands of a man whose name was a curse.

and protection. Partly he watched him at work, hoping to find a flaw, but in vain; but one day he found the way. He ordered Tom to dig a woman-slave who was guilty of the shortcoming attributed to her, and for the first time in his career Legree was denied. Tom refused. Legree's answer was a blow upon Tom's cheek. "What?" he roared in his rage. "Ye dare tell me ye won't, ye blasted black beast?" "I'll die first," Tom replied, simply. "Well, here's a pious dog—a saint—a gentleman!" sneered Legree. "Didn't ye ever read in your Bible. Servants obey your Masters? And ain't I your Master? Didn't I pay twelve hundred dollars cash for ye, and ain't ye mine, body and soul?" "No, Marce Legree," replied Tom, through the tears and blood that coursed down his cheeks. "My soul ain't yours! It's been bought and paid for by one that is able to keep it. Ye may kill my body, but ye can't harm my soul."

Now, according to the nature of his kind Legree was superstitious, and while his hatred increased, he began to fear in the presence of his fearless possession. In Tom's presence what passed for a conscience was aroused within him. Some of the unspeakable crimes of which in his lustful gratifications, and through his murderous instincts, he had been guilty began to prey upon him. Dark things had happened in the decayed old mansion in which Legree dwelt, and in common with the ignorant blacks by whom he was surrounded Legree began to have fears, accentuated by the delirium of drink, of impending visitations by ghosts. Taking advantage of these fears, his one-time mistress, Cassie, a woman of subtle powers, herself a slave, conspired with Emmaline, an attractive mulatto whom Legree was endeavoring to install in her place, to destroy his peace of mind, and ultimately himself by means of wraithful appearances and weird sounds in the corner of the old mansion. Pretending to escape through the swamps, eluding their pursuers, they returned to the house, and lay hid there for days, working their soul-stirring stratagem upon the worried Legree. Legree at the head of a pursuing party made up of negroes and blood hounds sought the missing women in the swamps and forests by which his isolated plantation was surrounded, but in vain; and in the rage of failure, believing him to have been party to the escape, he turned upon Tom.

"Well, ye black beast," he roared in a paroxysm of baffled rage, "I've made up my mind to kill ye."

"Very likely, Marce Legree," replied Tom, calmly.

"Unless ye tell me what ye know about these yer gals," said Legree.

"I ain't got nothin' to tell, Marce," said Tom.

"Don't ye dare tell me that ye don't know, ye old black Christian!" cried Legree in angry contempt, striking him furiously.

"Yes—I know, Marce," said Tom, "but I can't tell anything. I can die." "Hark ye, Tom," roared Legree, in a terrible voice. "This time I mean what I say. I'll conquer ye, or I'll kill ye! I'll count every drop of blood in your body till you give up."

"Marce," said Tom, "if you was sick, or in trouble, or dyin', and it would save ye, I'd give ye my heart's blood, and I'd takin' every drop of blood in this poor old body of mine would save your precious soul, I'd give 'em freely as the Lord gave his for me. Do the worst ye can. My troubles will soon be over, but if ye don't repent, yours won't never end."

For a moment Legree stood aghast, awed into silence by Tom's absolutely fearless reliance upon his faith, but only for a moment. There was one hesitating pause, and the spirit of evil within him, deduced, rose with seven-fold vehemence. Foaming with rage he struck his victim to the ground and gave him over to be flogged to ribbons.

Two days later George Shelby, Tom's boy-friend from Kentucky, now grown to manhood, appeared to fulfill his promise of redemption, but he came too late. Tom lay dying of his wounds.

"I've come to take you home," said George, tears falling from his eyes as he bent over his old friend.

"Bless the Lord—it's Marce Legree," cried Tom, as he opened his eyes, bewildered. "They haven't forgot me! They haven't forgot me! Now I shall die content."

At this moment Legree snatched him, and looked on carelessly.

"The old Satan!" cried George, in his indignation. "It's a comfort to think the Devil will pay him for this some of these days."

"Bless Marce Legree," said Uncle Tom. "Don't feel so. He ain't done me no real harm—only opened the gates of heaven for me—that's all."

The sudden flash of strength died away. A sense of sinking came over him, and he closed his eyes. His broad chest rose and fell heavily. The expression of his face was that of a conqueror.

"Who—who shall separate us from the love of Christ?" he whispered in a voice that conveyed with mortal weakness, and with a smile on his lips he fell asleep.

"Without, Eternal God," said George Shelby, as he bent beside the body of his departed friend. "O, without from this hour, I will do what one man can do to drive this curse of slavery from my land."

AUTOMOBILE SUPPLIES CHICAGO FACTORY WITH CURRENT FOR LIGHTING AND POWER

When the electric power of a Chicago manufacturing concern falls there will be no let up in the work as a result of a twelve-day experiment recently completed. George Davis, president of the company, set his automobile up on a platform, substituted pulleys on the rear axle shafts for the wheels and connected these pulleys to the factory power shaft. But the belts slipped and the auto wheels and tires were replaced. The car then ran a 220-volt generator 24 hours a day for 12 days, supplying the factory with current for light and power without any curtailment in the plant's output.

CARE OF BRAKES PREVENTS WEAR

Equalization and Proper Attention of Car's Machinery Are Explained.

NEGLECT OF CONTROL RODS

Clavies and Other Parts Are Not Provided With Any Means of Lubrication—Become Quite Noisy and Rattlesome.

The automobile owner is hardly to be blamed because he neglects the brake and control linkage on his car. It is all beneath the chassis, and it is certainly not arranged in such a way he can give it any marked attention. The clavies, and other parts of the points of the control rods are not provided with any means of lubrication, so that there seems to be little or nothing that the owner can do to take care of this part of the car.

Yet it is the brake and control rods which eventually become the most noisy and rattlesome parts of the car. The little yoke connections with which the little ends of the rods are held together, become full of grit and are naturally bound to wear.

The connections through which the brakes are operated are simple and easy to follow. The pedal or lever is pivoted and connected with a set of rods and linkage arranged in such a way as to transmit the motion of the foot or hand in reduced and hence more powerful leverage to the brake mechanism.

Brake Adjustment.

In adjusting brakes some precautions must be kept in mind. In the case of the foot-brake, which is generally the external or contracting type, the bands bear on the exterior of the drums in securing the braking effect. There is generally an adjustment on the exterior part of the brake itself where the adjustment can be made without any danger of changing the throw of the linkage. This is very important, because if the throw or centers of the links are changed in their relationship they will be affected by the motion of the springs.

Perhaps you have noticed in some cars that if you watch the brake pedal, it will move in or out as the car springs are deflected. The reason for this is that the rod which connects the brake linkage with the brake operating units, or, in other words, the last link in the chain of rods is centered so that the upward and downward motion of the chassis centers about such a point in relation to the pivot point of the rod that it becomes relatively longer or shorter and consequently moves the brake mechanism.

There are a great many manufacturers who are not putting equalizers on their cars and in these makes it is very essential to see that the brakes are adjusted uniformly.

How to Test Brakes.

An easy way to test the brakes is to drive at about ten miles an hour while some one is watching the car. Apply the brake slightly and allow the observer to note if one wheel was locked before the other. If so, indicate the adjustment on the last wheel to lock and try it again. The test can be made on any kind of a road where the surface beneath each wheel is the same. A flat piece of asphalt makes a very good place to hold such a test.

SHEET STEEL PLATE HOLDS SPEED PEDAL

Handy Device When Driving Car at Moderate Rate.

Saw-Tooth Edge Engages Lip, Ratchet Fashion, Regardless of Wear on Lining of Band—Wearisome Task is Avoided.

In using a car with planetary transmission, it was found wearisome to keep the low-speed pedal down by foot pressure when driving uphill or traveling through sand or mud. The pedal was therefore equipped with a piece of 1/4-in. sheet steel, with ears or flanges on both sides, by means of which it was pivoted on a small pin fitted through a hole drilled in the pedal just below the pad. A long piece of 1/4-in. sheet steel, with a number of teeth at the end which engage a steel lip screwed to the car dash, was fitted to the back of this member. The saw-tooth edge engaged the lip, ratchet-fashion, regardless of the wear on the lining of the band which the low-speed pedal tightens around the drum in the transmission.

To engage the teeth, the driver pushes the pedal forward until the car is on low speed, and then, with an upward movement of the knee, he causes the teeth to engage. To release the pedal, the pressure is applied on the portion of the plate just below the pivot, so that the teeth rise and disengage. When driving under ordinary conditions, the driver's foot prevents the teeth from dropping to the level of the lip, and if he wishes to travel on low speed for a few minutes, he presses the pedal forward in the usual way; but whenever he finds it necessary to travel for a considerable distance on low speed, the teeth are allowed to fall, thus engaging the lip. ## AUTOMOBILE PAINTS

Men who wash their own cars will find a spray brush handy.

The wise owner will each year clean the exhaust system thoroughly.

Any leaks are a common cause of misfiring, though they are often overlooked.

No good tire of standard make will be cut by any standard rim if properly used.

The checking device now supplied with most good cars makes starting easy even in the coldest weather.

There is more wear reported on the side walls of the right tire, due to the increasing use of the left side drive.

"PARTY FACES DISASTER"—GORE

Senator Thomas Gore, Democrat of Oklahoma, who was defeated for re-election through the influence of the White House because of his opposition to the League of Nations, plainly indicates that he proposes to continue his fight upon the league. The blind senator says:

"The paramount issue is to avert disaster, nobody favors the league that understands it."

"The women of Maine have read it. It is no wonder about the women. It is no marvel about the mothers. They are not willing to mortgage the pound of flesh nearest their hearts."

"They are not willing to sign this bloody bond which is a first lien upon the life of every boy beneath the stars and stripes."

"He was blind indeed who had not already seen the black shadow of the Maine elections visioned upon the horizon."

BACK PORCH CAMPAIGN TO BE BEGUN SOON BY WILSON.

Washington. — Gradually being pushed to the rear by the progress of the campaign it is now announced that President Wilson is to wage a "Back-Porch" campaign. The local evening papers announce this fact and say that the plan is being discussed by the Administration leaders. It may even come within a week some of these leaders believe. Edmund H. Moore, who managed Governor Cox's pre-convention campaign, is given credit for this rear attack on the Harding method of using the front porch.

Discipline.

No one ever begins to climb at the top, but an observant business man remarks that the trouble with many of our young people is that they do not seem to be aware of that fact. They are so assured of their own strength, and high desert that they claim the wrong end of the ladder.

For the first time in the history of baseball, two brothers will appear on the same team. They are Jimmie Johnston and John Johnston, the hard-hitting first baseman of the Cleveland Indians. Jimmie Johnston's brother is batting, but Jimmie is a far better fielder. The presence of the two brothers will probably be watched more closely by the fans than any of the other contestants.

K. H. S. PLAYS WELL IN FIRST GAME

Held Heavier Albany Team in Scoreless Tie—Had Up-River Men in Trouble Three Times and Fumble Prevented Probable Score—Teams Play Again Saturday.

In one of the best games of football played by the local high school team at the Athletic Field, Kingston's High School gridironers held Albany High School scoreless. Kingston was within scoring distance at three different times and things looked pretty bad for the Albany boys, while the Kingston goal was never really in danger.

The maroon and white team was out-weighted in every division of the line-up by their opponents. But the local crew had an idea of modern football playing and their tackling far exceeded Albany's.

Cochran Hall deserves great credit for the fine condition in which he had the team. Not a single substitution was made by K. H. S., while Albany put in a practically new team of substitutes.

Barnham's punting was a feature of the game, while Sears started at line-plunging. McAndrew showed excellent judgment and good leadership in his handling of the team.

First Quarter—The maroon and white received the ball and after a series of strong, hard line-plunges advanced the ball into the garnet and gray territory. Here the ball was lost to Albany on a fumble.

Albany started out with a series of end runs and forward passes and succeeded in getting the pigskin to Kingston's 30 yard line. But here a halt was called and K. H. S. held them for three downs and received the ball on an incomplete forward pass.

Kingston advanced steadily and the quarter ended with Kingston in possession of the ball in the center of the field.

Second Quarter—At the opening of the second quarter, with the help of Sears, the ball was advanced to the Albany 15 yard line. At this point in the game McAndrew came within an ace of winning the game with a nice drop kick, which just missed clearing the crossbar. From then until the end of the half the pigskin saw-sawed up and down the center of the field.

Third Quarter. Albany received the kick-off, but soon they were forced to punt. At once, Kingston's warriors again started their march down the field with the ball. The gains were added to by Sears carrying the ball for 5 and 10 yard runs. Albany held on their 20 yard line and McAndrew was forced to attempt another drop kick. It was blocked and McAndrew dropped on the ball saving it for Kingston. On the 4th down Albany intercepted a forward pass, but failed to make any good gains in 4 downs. Once more, the Garnet and Gray was forced to punt. The quarter ended with the ball in local hands on the Kingston 40 yard line.

4th Quarter. K. H. S. pushed the ball on down the field toward the A. H. S. goal line until they were on the latter's 15 yard line. Here the splendid prospects of a score for Kingston were halted by Sears' fumbling the ball. Albany attempted to get away with a forward pass on her own 15 yard line and nearly succeeded in doing so. The Albany end had his hands on the ball but it proved too slippery for him and he dropped it.

Before the ball could be put into play again, the timer's shrill whistle ended the game.

N. J. AUTO CLUB COMING OCT. 9

The runs and tours committee, J. C. Enders, chairman, of the Automobile Club of Hudson County, Jersey City, N. J., have issued a circular letter giving members information about their proposed trip to Kingston.

In it the committee says, "Here's all about that fall run you have been expecting to hear about to be held Saturday and Sunday, October 9th and 10th. The objective point of our run is Kingston, N. Y., 199 miles from Jersey City, over the finest roads in the east. Arriving at Kingston, accommodations for our party has been arranged at the Eagle Hotel. Kingston affords many attractions for the autoist. A beautiful, clean city of 25,000, it affords many places of historical interest, one of which is the Old Senate House, not to speak of the numerous places of interest in the immediate vicinity, namely, Lake Mohonk and what has been the most popular mecca this season for autoists from all parts of the country, the trip to the Ashokan reservoir. It is suggested this trip be made on Sunday morning. Ashokan, about fifteen miles from Kingston, presents one of the greatest and most beautiful engineering developments ever consummated, costing over 100 million dollars. We consider ourselves fortunate in deciding on Kingston as our stopping place, considering the additional feature it affords in a trip to this wonderful reservoir. Accommodations at the Eagle Hotel can be provided for 100, so it's a case of first come, first served; so get ahead early and send in your reservation."

The automobilists are expected to all arrive at the Eagle Hotel early Saturday afternoon and be on hand for the dinner to be served in the evening. That evening the members a majority to be accompanied by their wives, will have a dance at the hotel, the large dining room to be made ready for the party and gorgeously decorated for the occasion by Landlord Hungertord, who will see that the visitors are accorded every comfort during their stay at the Eagle Sunday, after visiting historical spots in this city, the club members will make a tour around the Ashokan reservoir, and to other points of interest in the Catskills.

August (Garry) Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Reds, who in his testimony before the Cook county grand jury is said to have charged that players of the New York Giants were bribed to lose the National League pennant to the Cincinnati team in 1919. Affidavits supporting his charge are said to have been presented to the grand jury. He said a "club" fund of $20,000 was used to bribe several of the players.

Electric Earnings

SOME PEOPLE HAVE SAID TO US:

"We do not doubt that you need an increase in your gas rates—but how about your rates for electricity? Is it not a fact that, while you are losing money in your Gas Department, you are making large profits from the sale of electricity?"

Here are the facts:

Before the war (1912-1917 inclusive) earnings from our electric business averaged 8 1-3 per cent on the money actually invested in it.

Since then, we have averaged about 7 per cent, and this is the present rate of our earnings in the Electric Department.

The result is:

While we have been losing large sums from the sale of gas, our present earnings on the actual investment in our electric business are only 7 per cent.
